CLEVELAND REITERATES.

His Views on the Financial Question in a Letter to Governor Northern.

In reply to a letter from Governor Northern, of Georgia, asking the President to give his position on financial matters, Mr. Cleveland has sent

EXECUTIVE MANSION,

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.

HON. W. J. NORTHERN—My Dear Sir: I hardly know how to reply to your letter of the 15th inst. It seems to me that I am quite plainly on record concerning the financial question. My letter accepting the nomination to the Presidency, when read in connection with the message lately sent to the Congress in extraordinary session appears to me to be very explicit. I want a currency that is stable and safe in the hands of our people. I will not knowingly be implicated in a condition that will justify make me in the least degree answerable to any laborer or farmer in the United States for a shrinkage.

IN THE PURCHASING POWER.

Of the dollar he has received for a dollar's worth of work, or for a good dollar's worth of the product of his toil. I not only want our currency to be of such a character that all kinds of dollars will be of equal purchasing power at home, but I want it to be of such a character as will demonstrate abroad our wisdom and good faith, thus placing upon a firm foundation our credit among the nations of the earth.

Want our financial conditions and the laws relating to our currency so safe and reassuring that those who have money will spend and invest it in business and new enterprises instead of hoarding it. You can not cure fright by calling it foolish and unreasonable, and you can not prevent the frightened man from hoarding his money. I want a good, sound and stable money and a condition of confidence that will keep it in use.

Within the limits of what I have written, I am a friend of silver, but I believe its proper place in our currency can only be fixed by a readjustment of our currency legislation and the inauguration of a consistent and comprehensive financial scheme. I think

SUCH A THING.

Can only be entered upon profitably and hopefully after the repeal of the law which is charged with all our financial woes. In the present state of the public mind, this law cannot be built upon, nor patched in such a way as to relieve the situation.

I am, therefore, opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver by this country alone and independently, and I am in favor of the immediate and unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the so-called Sherman Law.

I confess I am astonished by the opposition in the Senate to such prompt action as would relieve the present unfortunate situation.

My daily prayer is that the delay occasioned by such opposition may not be the cause of plunging the country into deeper depression than it has yet known, and that the Democratic party may not be justly held responsible for such a catastrophe.

Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

WHAT DO YOU TAKE?

Medicine for? Because you are sick and want to get well, or because you wish to prevent illness. Then remember that Hood's Saraparilla cures all diseases caused by impure blood and debility of the system. It is not what its proprietors say but what Hood's Saraparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. Be sure to get Hood's, and only Hood's.

Snow falls Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Friday.

The Kentucky Association will hold their fall meeting as usual. The intention to declare the meeting off has been reconsidered so Mr. J. E. Hanly the Secretary writes us the prospectus for the best meeting in the history of the Association.

Mr. Robert A. Thompson will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday morning.

"The Old Man."

"Ichabod, my boy, methought I heard you speak of your sire this morning as 'the old man.' You are 17 years of age, are you not? Just so! This is the age when a lallow youth has his first attack of the big head. You imagine at this moment that you know it all. I observe by the cut of your trousers and the angle of your hat, the flavor of your breath, and the style of your tooth-pick shoes, and the swagger of your walk, that you are badly gone on yourself. This is an error of youth which your uncle can overlook, but it pains him sore to hear you speak in terms of disrespect of your father, who you should never mention save by the sacred name of 'father.' He may not be up to your style in the modern art of making a fool of himself, but, ten to one, he forgets more in a week than you will ever know. He may not enjoy smoking gutter snipes, chopped fine and inclosed in delicate tissue paper, but he has borne a good many hard knocks for your sake, and entitled to all the reverence your shallow brain can muster. By and by after you are through knowing it all, and begin to realize it, you will be ashamed to look in the glass, and will wonder where the fool-killer kept himself when were ripe with shame. And when 'the old man' grows tired of the journey and stops to rest, and you fold his arms across his bosom and take a last look at the face that has grown beautiful in death you will feel a sting of regret that you ever spoke of him so grossly disrespectful a manner, and when you hear other sprouts of infidelity using the language that so delighted you in the germinal period of manhood, you will feel like shaking them with a sled stake and crushing their skulls to see if there is any brain tissue on the inside?"

H. Clay King's Last Scheme.

Col. H. Clay King, the murderer of David H. Poston, now serving a life sentence in the Tennessee penitentiary as a punishment for his crime, has issued an address to the public in which he makes some sensational charges. He alleges that his conviction was brought about by conspiracy between Judge Julius J. Dubois, of Shelby county criminal court, and relatives of Poston. Dubois, he asserts, used every means in his power to secure conviction in order to placate the Postons, who were his political enemies. King also charges that Mrs. Gideon J. Pillow and David H. Poston, the murdered man, were criminally intimate. The publication of the article has caused a sensation. King wrote it for the purpose of arousing public sentiment in his favor, in the hope of securing a pardon, but he will fail in his object, as Governor Turney was a member of the supreme court when King's death sentence was affirmed.

Cold and Heat.

Water freezes and becomes ice at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, whereas mercury only freezes at 39 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Olive oil, on the contrary, shows signs of congelation at from 40 to 45 degrees Fahrenheit. The three substances quoted being all liquids, the difference in the loss of heat requisite to bring them to solidification is very great indeed. The action of heat on fluids or solids is equally various. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit, lead melts at 612 degrees; the fusing point of gold is 1616 degrees, and iron 3000 degrees.

FOR TRADE.

I have for trade, 13 nice yearling cattle, that I am desirous to exchange for two good yearling mules. Must be good ones.

ANOTHER ROWAN COUNTY MURDER!

M. F. Fouch, Sheriff, kills County Clerk Geo. Johnson.

Yesterday was county court day of Rowan county, and there were about two hundred people in Morehead.

Mr. Fouch, Sheriff of the county, was in County Clerk Johnson's office about 11:30 o'clock, collecting taxes, when his right to collect delinquent taxes which had been reported to the State auditor, came up and a dispute arose, which was followed by the lie, and the Clerk struck at or struck the Sheriff, who drew his pistol, shooting the Clerk twice, once through the breast and once through the brain, killing him instantly. Fouch surrendered to County Judge, Crosswhite. At first there was intense excitement, but it soon died down, and Fouch was placed under a guard. The two officers were not on very friendly terms.

ACROSS A BARREL

They Stretched the Imposter and Whaled Him.

About two years ago J. W. Copock came from Louisville, Ky., and accepted the management of the Jacksonville, (Ala.) Ice Company. His department was that of a perfect gentleman, and soon had the respect and esteem of the citizens of Jacksonville and engaged himself to a young lady of that place. The marriage was to come off two weeks hence.

Tuesday evening it leaked out that he had a living wife and two children in Louisville, Ky. The citizens assembled, purchased a whalebone buggy whip, invited the imposter to lay himself across a barrel with face down for about 20 minutes, and the lash was applied in a gentle manner.

He was then put on the north-bound East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia train and gently reminded that he had better shake the dust of Alabama from his feet, which he did without further persuasion.—Cincinnati Post.

RUSSELL NOMINATED.

The Massachusetts Democratic Convention met in convention on Wednesday, at Boston, and nominated Hon. J. W. Russell for Governor. When Mr. Russell was introduced, he said: "If our opponents, leaving the State issue, make their fight on the ground of the late financial disturbances and the stoppage of industries they will gain only the votes of the ignorant and unthinking, whose drift of late years has been to their side."

"The Sherman bill was a shock to foreign confidence. The McKinley tariff was the fulfillment of a bargain in which the right to lay and collect, the highest act of sovereignty, the right conferred by the people solely for the purpose of revenue and limited closely to the need of Government were transferred to individuals and corporations.

"Mr. Russell in closing praised the course of President Cleveland, and said: "Strong, warm-hearted type of American citizenship, the best example of the broadest statesmanship—the question in our election is, will Massachusetts stand by his administration?"

The rest of the ticket is as follows:

For Secretary of State, Hon. James W. McDonald, of Marlboro; for Treasurer, and Receiver General, Hon. Elben S. Stevens of Dudley; for Attorney General, Hon. Charles S. Hey of Lowell; for Auditor, Hon. John T. Wheelwright, of Boston.

Rev. E. E. Bomar has been called to pasture the First Baptist Church, Aiken, S. C., a city of nearly 3,200 population. Mr. Bomar is an active pastor, a number one preacher, and has the esteem of this entire people who will rejoice that he has a large field in which to do good.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amounted to 2,756 hds, with receipts for the same period of 973 hds. Sales on our market since January 1, amount to 104,357 hds. Sales of the crop of 1892 on our market amount to 106,313 hds.

The market for the better grades of burley has been more active this week with a tendency to higher values. The medium grades remain unchanged, while common grades are somewhat easier. The housing of the burley crop has progressed rapidly during the week, and considerable tobacco has been cut green on account of the few recent cool days and slight frost in some parts of the State.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco, (1892 crop.)

Trash. (Dark) damaged tobacco $3.50 to $4.00.

Common color trash, $4.25 to $5.00.

Medium to good color trash, $5 to $7.

Common lugs, no color, $4.00 to $5.

Common color lugs, $5 to $7.50.

Medium to good color lugs, $7.50 to $8.50.

Common to medium leaf $8.00 to $9.

Medium to good leaf, $9 to $14.

Good to fine leaf, $14 to $16.

Select wrapper styles, $16 to $20.

GLOVER & DURETT

Tender of Their Earrings.

The annual report of the Health Officers credits two Louisville deaths during the past mortuary year to intemperance, and in obedience to the injunction to speak no ill of the dead, considerably relieves the others to cithorosis of the liver, heart failure and other maladies forms of euphemistic mendacity. As brutal candor would lacerate the sorrows of relatives and the tender sensibilities of the barkeepers, it is well, perhaps, that the bitter truth should thus be officially sugar-coated. But all the same, red and amber liquors killed more than two or two hundred people in this town during the past year. (Louisville Times.)

Editor's ADVOCATE:

The city needs efficient officers for the preservation of its peace and good order. One of the most important places to be filled is that of City Attorney. To fill this acceptably, requires a man fearless in the discharge of his duty, and with a fitness to make a vigorous prosecution where it is needed. Every man, no matter how good he may be otherwise, does not necessarily possess these qualifications. A man does not have to be bad in glove with gamblers, brawlers and the worst elements of society, to make him an unfit person to hold this (for our city's peace) important office. I have no word of disapprovement for any one of the candidates for this office. I do desire to call attention to the special fitness of one among them for the duties of the place to which he aspires. The fact is well known to all, that almost the only enemies he has made and certainly the most active ones he possesses, are those whose envy can be distinctly traced to his vigorous prosecution or fearless administration of the law, as it applied to them or some of their friends. Surely a man who is fearless in the discharge of his duty, efficient and painstaking in prosecuting all offenders; and, who always exhibits a lively and intelligent interest in the city's affairs, should have the votes of all right thinking citizens. Such a man is Judge H. C. McKee, and I am firmly persuaded it is very much to the city's interest to elect him. I hope the voters can see this as I do.

The store of Mr. Charles Stanford at Jeffersonville, was burned on Friday night. The Postoffice was located in the building and all the effects together with the stock of goods were lost. The goods were insured for $1,000 and the building which belonged to Mrs. Salyer for $500.

Elder J. B. Greenwade closed his tent meeting at Sideview last Sunday night, with ten confessions and baptisms and one reclaimed. Large audiences and a deep interest throughout the meeting.

GIVES UP THE WORLD.

Madeline Pollard Turns her Back Upon the World and a Home For Fallen Women.

A Washington special says: Miss

Madeline Pollard, who has sued Congressman Breckinridge, of Kentucky, for breach of promise, has voluntarily identified herself with the House of Mercy here, which seeks to reclaim fallen women. Miss Pollard entered the institution soon after the proceedings against Mr. Breckinridge were begun. She is not known as Miss Pollard in the Home, having assumed another name. She has not entered another name. She has been accepted as a willing worker and is now engaged in missionary and educational work. Miss Pollard practically has surrendered all her liberties. She was at first assigned to educational work, but insisted upon sharing in the drudgery of the institution.

DANGEROUS LOOKING BOXES.

Ship's Stores That Frightened the Captain.

Here is an amusing incident which happened on her majesty's ship Canada in 1883, when the Duke of York was on board. It occurred when the vessel was but a few days at sea. Because royalty was aboard unusual precautions were observed to make the ship safe enough.

When an inventory of the commissariat was taken, two suspicious looking boxes were found among the stores of which no account could be discovered. This was a time when the alleged activity of Irish dynamiters was giving Englishmen many troubled dreams. An explosion almost destroyed the ship, and it was attributed to the Pacific squadron only a short time before, and it was believed by many that the explosion had been caused by dynamite.

The commissariat officers of the Canada were sorely dismayed by the two mysterious boxes. Might not some fanatic Irishman have sought to poison the captain himself by setting fire to an explosive machine on board the ship which was to carry the possible future king of a hated nation? Such a machine would be timed to do its deadly work when least expected.

What could the suspicious boxes contain if not the poison? The prince was the coveted game, to be sure, but 300 insignificant souls must go with him.

Who could blame the officers for being alarmed? There was nothing to be afraid of—about when no account of the boxes could be found among the ship's papers. No time must be lost for, before another hour, they might all be scattered to the elements.

The sodden old captain ordered the two boxes to be slipped overboard as "damaged goods" and the matter kept strictly secret from the prince and the men in order to avoid a panic.

After more than two months on the ocean another inventory of the ship's stores became necessary, for the captain intended to take in a new supply at Halifax.

Now the invoice of two boxes of German sausages taken on board at Portsmouth was found among some other papers. But the goods were not in the ship; did the accounts show that they had been consumed during the voyage?

What had been a dark secret with a few soon furnished amusement for the whold ship, for the boxes contained—German sausage.—London Tit-Bits.

Laughter.

Laughter has often dissipated sadness and preserved life by a sudden effort of nature. We are told that the great Erasmus laughed so heartily at a satirical remark that he broke a tumor and recovered his health. In a similar way the author of the Jester gives two similar instances. A patient being very low, the physician, who had ordered a dose of rhubarb, countermanded the medicine, which was left on the table.

A monkey in the room jumping up discovered the goblet, and having tasted made a terrible grimace. As he was about to fall, however, he perceived some sweetness of the dissolved marmalade, while the rhubarb had sunk to the bottom. Thus emboldened, he swallowed the whole, but found it such a nauseous potion that after many strange and fantastic grimaces he ground his teeth in agony, and in a violent fury threw the monkey out of the room.

What was so ludicrous that the sick man burst into repeated peals of laughter, and the recovery of cheerfulness led to health.—New York Ledger.

Authors of Plays.

An author speaking on the compositions of playwrights said the other day: "I cannot encourage any one to go into the business of writing plays. No one can conceive of the trouble we have in getting a play produced. It is almost an impossibility to get on record and accepted." The author, however, perhaps why certain plays that seem to be drawing crowded houses are suddenly taken off. The cause is very simple. Managers cannot afford to pay authors the royalties they demand. For one or two years possibly a good play is a financial success, but then comes the bad time when it begins to lose money on it. The author refuses to reduce his terms, and the play is taken off. You will ask why author and manager do not compromise. That is just what we all want to know. It ought to be done, but the fact remains that they do not.—New York Tribune.

The Will Learn Later On.

Little Johnny Smart is a half-breed of his alloy and sells daily papers for a livelihood. He has learned all the naughty tricks practiced by his comrades except tobacco chewing. His initial trial at this accomplishment was made a few days ago, but it made him ill, and he retired to his corner and lay there. The other boys laughed at him for his failure, which drew out this comment from the suffering Johnny:

"Git away, you fellows! I would make you sick, too, if you won't come to it."

At least it sounded like that—Boston Courier.

A Table That Teaches a Moral.

Here is a fable concerning a certain island infested by donkeys whose continuous braying disturbed the peace:

A valiant knight who heard of them said to his fellows: "Come, let us away and slay these pestiferous braying donkeys so that the island may have rest." So each brave man buckled on his trusty sword, and away they went. When they landed on the island, they were met by one of its wise men who, on learning the intent of the knight, warned him that the donkeys were immortal and could not be killed. "What?" said the knight. "Do you tell me that I and my brave men cannot silence these donkeys?"

Forthwith the knight and his men laid about them right and left, and the ground was strewed with unfortunate brayers. Then they wiped their blades and retired to rest. In the morning the knight sounded his bugle horn and said, "Let us bury those carcasses, or the last plague may prove worse than the first." But when they reached the field, behold! every donkey was on his feet, braying louder than ever. "What?" said the knight, "did the wise man tell you that today, they will be alive tomorrow?" "But," replied the knight, "how do you live in their continual braying?" "Why, we let them bray and go ahead with our business or pleasure, the same as if they were not there," Illinois Suffrage.

Worshippers of Strange Gods.

Snake worshippers are more numerous than river worshippers in the Punjab. They have always been a large denomination in heathen countries. Why they worship snakes is not known, but it is believed to be due to a particular purpose.

But people who worship owls, bats, lobsters, rats and mice will worship anything, and perhaps snake worshippers are so common merely because snakes are so widely distributed and so far from exclusive in their habits. If a man is a worshiper of snakes and amethystines, he may go to Australia to do so, but serpents are everywhere. So is the earth (Pithi), and the earth, as Hertha, Demeter, and under many other names, has never wanted adorers.

Even the untutored Pawnees are earth worshippers and bury articles of value in the ground, believing that they can be dug up again. The ancestral mound is a good deal abroad in the Punjab. In Scotland it became the fairy hill, as at Aberfeldy, and was treated with conspicuous respect in times comparatively modern.

David Solomon had two-thirds interest in a business amounting to $350,000 a year, the other third being held by his brother Henry. All his family were against him on the question safety, and fourteen of seventeen of his employees ranged themselves on the same side. His intended bride, however, believed him safe, and obtained a writ of habeas corpus upon the return of which the question of his sanity was submitted to a jury. All the experts said David was insane. Those included not only the two physicians that had given the certificate in the first place, but the Superintendent of the asylum and other physicians connected with the institution. They said he was in the first stage of paresis. No expert testified on the other side, and it is said that none could be found who would pronounce David sane. Nevertheless, the jury were unanimously of the opinion that he was sane, and a good business man and said so in their verdict after a brief period of consultation.

The testimony of the experts in this case was wholly disregarded by the jury. Two of the experts were concerned in sending the patient to the asylum, and the other two in keeping him there, and were in a measure bound to say he was insane.

The jury, which consisted of several bankers and brokers, several merchants, an ex-school Commissioner and a publisher, heard David testify, listened to the other evidence in the case, and overruled the experts. The next day David and Miss Thomas were married.

Whether it turns out in the end that this man is insane or not, there is some serious objection to a system by which one may be secretly incarcerated in an asylum at the bare suggestion of some person who has an obvious interest in getting him out of the way.

Publity in such cases is not always desirable, but there should be some means provided by which the liberty of the citizen may be guarded.—Howard in New York Recorder.

Basil in the Dust of Cities.

Mr. Manfredi has been announcing some disquieting facts concerning the omnipresence of fatal microbes. In the busy thoroughfare of a crowded city he has found 1,000,000 microbes to a grain of dust, and in the dirtiest street 5,000,000. The most dangerous number of disease-producing microbes were found among these, the number of such morbid germs being directly proportional to the aggregate number of microbes.

Of 42 cases in which he inoculated guinea-pigs with Neapolitan pest, he detected the tubercle bacillus (the germ of consumption) in three, the bacillus of pus in eight, the bacillus of tetanus in two, the bacillus of malignant oedema in four and other fatal bacilli. A medical paper suggests that the streets of American cities should be closed to traffic, and adds it is evident that in many of them there was as rich in variety and deadliness as was garnered in Naples could easily be secured. Emphasis is given to Dr. Manfredi's alarming statistics by the results of some investigations which have been carried on by Professor Ueffelman with respect to the carrying of cholera bacilli by means of letters, postal cards, etc.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Beat the Experts.

The insanity expert is sometimes considered a rather agile and uncertain witness. The readiness with which different experts deduce directly opposite conclusions from the same premises proves very perplexing to juries and the public at large in many trials that attract public attention. The American juror, however, is also a person of some versatility, and capable upon occasion of competing with any class of experts upon equal terms. His ability to do this has just been demonstrated in an interesting case that attracted public attention.

David J. Solomon, a merchant to New York city, had an engagement to marry Miss Clara Perry Thomas on the evening of the 8th of August last, but failed to appear. His reason for absence was unexplainable, for at the hour for the nuptials he was an involuntary inmate of the Bloomingdale Insane Asylum. He had been sent there at the instance of his brother, Henry, who had obtained a certificate from two physicians that David was insane, and on that certificate a Judge granted an order for his confinement in the asylum. His intended bride was told that he was insane, but the place where he was confined was withheld from her.

David Solomon had two-thirds interest in a business amounting to $350,000 a year, the other third being held by his brother Henry. All his family were against him on the question safety, and fourteen of seventeen of his employees ranged themselves on the same side. His intended bride, however, believed him safe, and obtained a writ of habeas corpus upon the return of which the question of his sanity was submitted to a jury. All the experts said David was insane.

Those included not only the two physicians that had given the certificate in the first place, but the Superintendent of the asylum and other physicians connected with the institution. They said he was in the first stage of paresis. No expert testified on the other side, and it is said that none could be found who would pronounce David sane. Nevertheless, the jury were unanimously of the opinion that he was sane, and a good business man and said so in their verdict after a brief period of consultation.

The testimony of the experts in this case was wholly disregarded by the jury. Two of the experts were concerned in sending the patient to the asylum, and the other two in keeping him there, and were in a measure bound to say he was insane.

I. N. HORTON.

The United States Senate was the scene of an exciting debate between Mr. Wolcott and Mr. Gordon Wednesday the latter, indignant at the former's reference to him as the "steerer" of the Repeal Bill and speaking with much feeling, accused the Colorado Senator of eavesdropping at the doors of the committee rooms "through himself or his agents." Afterward Mr. Gordon modified his language and peace again reigned.

On Wednesday last, the motion to set aside the judgment of the Montgomery Circuit Court in appointing the Columbia Finance and Trust Company Trustee of the New Farmers Bank, was heard and dismissed. After the adjournment of the Court, Col. Thomas Turner, at the request of a large number of interested hearers, made a speech from the steps of the Tyler-Apperson block, in which he severely arraigned some of the attorneys engaged in the case. His withering words of denunciation and contempt were scathing. Indeed, and the charges he made, and which he stated he was able to prove, were such as to confirm the community, in an already only too wide-spread opinion, that a man did not have to be a member of the legislature to sell out.

If the charges are false, it took the tongue of a most malicious slanderer to frame them; if true, no words have meaning enough to paint the guilty ones in their true colors. It does not need to be said, the attorney who will betray a client in one case will betray another when opportunity offers.

A gentleman said to us a few days since, "Ed C. Oscar, Thomas Turner and Reid Rogers came out of this case with clean hands, and more firmly rooted in the confidence of the community than they have ever been." It can further be said to the credit of the men, themselves, and to the honor of the exalted positions they have occupied, that the two ex-Chief Justices of Kentucky, Judges B. J. Peters and W. H. Holt, who were in the cases, have not the smell of fire in their garments, nor is there a suspicion that either have an itching palm.

The name of Mr. W. C. Taylor, of Meneffe, for Representative, appears at the head of our columns. He is the Democratic nominee, and right logically will he find the Democrats of Montgomery rally to his support. Mr. Taylor is a good Democrat, and one who, we are assured, will do his best to serve the people of his district to the very utmost of his ability. He is a business man who, by industry, economy and honesty, has won a competency. He began life with little of this world's goods and comparatively few friends able to aid him in his struggles, but his course has been such that he has not only gained money, but what is far better, a reputation among his fellow-men for fidelity and uprightness. We repeat we do all this utmost to make us a creditable Representative.

Mr. I. N. Horton has won the race for Democratic nominee for Superintendent of Schools of Montgomery, and he will be elected by a handsome majority. Esquire Horton has served on the Board of Magistrates of Montgomery county and the people know him. He is our nominee and the people are going to support him. The talked-of contest on the part of one of the defeated candidates is all nonsense. The fact that he held the office of Magistrate at the time he was nominated is no bar to that nomination. Horton is our nominee and the people will make him their next Superintendent of Schools. More, the County Committee will be but a few minutes disposing of any notion of a contest on such trifling grounds as has been proposed. Horton got the votes, he is our nominee, we are going to elect him, and that's all there is in it.

Register to-day.

The Trusteeship of the New Farmers Bank.

We had occasion last week to express our opinion of the appointment of the Columbia Finance and Trust Company as Trustee of the New Farmers Bank. What has developed since has only served to strengthen us in our opinion, and the community is almost a unit in regarding the appointment in quite an unfavorable light as we do. The thing is done and, we fear, cannot now be undone; therefore we sincerely hope we may be mistaken in our estimate of the mischief that will come upon this county because of this appointment. But we want it distinctly understood we have no apologies to make for anything we may have felt called upon to say, or may hereafter find it in our way to express, about this or any other matter, we may feel is injurious to the best interests of the people among whom we live. We are for our own people, against outsiders, politically, financially or socially, first, last and all the time. If this is wrong, make the most of it. We are simply built that way and cannot help it—in fact we do not desire to do so. The appointment was a disastrous one in our judgment for the financial interests of the county. We have said so and think the results will fully justify us in using much more pronounced expressions of disapproval than we yet found necessary to do. We shall see, what we shall see.

Register to-day.

How are the ADVOCATE editors pleased with the candidates nominated last Saturday? Be honest about it, brothers, and tell your readers just what you think. Are these candidates the "very best" that were before the people? * * *

The will of the majority is the supreme law in the Democratic party. How is the ADVOCATE pleased with the nominations last Saturday.—Sentinel-Democrat.

The ADVOCATE tenders its sincerest sympathy to Brother Cassity in his disappointment at his defeat. We hope he may have better luck next time.

Johnson of Indiana showed some of his dirt last week when for an unmanly utterance Mr. Breckinridge said "I dismiss the gentleman by a wave of the hand" he responded:

"There is another thing you would like the people to dismiss, but they won't." Such an utterance under such circumstances is a true indication of the character of a man who is not even worth contempt.

Johnson has lowered himself by this utterance in the estimation of all brave and courageous men. Not able to stand in debate with Mr. Breckinridge, he resorts to a cowardly attack.

Ex-Secretary Whitney has written a letter refuting some published charges in regard to the appointment of Mr. James Van Alen as ambassador to Italy. He quotes a letter that he wrote to the President last May concerning the proposed appointment in which he told the President there was no obligation upon him growing out of the campaign to appoint any one to any office. A letter from Mr. Van Alen is also quoted, in which he refers to the charges as utterly false.

Congressman Oates made an elaborate argument Friday before the House Committee on Banking and Currency in support of his bill repealing the 10 per cent, tax on State banks. The bill provides for Federal supervision, with a limitation of what has been declared by the courts to be a lawful Federal tax. One clause declares the aggregate amount of State bank issues shall not exceed $5 per capita of the population of the State.

It matters not who the ADVOCATE may have thought were the "very best" men before the recent primary for Democratic nominees for the Legislature and County Superintendent of Public Schools. The majority of Democrats have indicated their choice, and their names are found at the head of our columns as Democratic nominees and we stand ready to champion the cause of these same Democratic nominees.

The judicial appointment act passed by the last Indiana Legislator has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of that State. Judge Dale, who wrote the decision declared that the act subjected the judiciary to the legislative power, and utterly destroyed all judicial independence.

MT. STERLING, Ky., Sept. 30, '93.

Editor MT. STERLING ADVOCATE:
Sirs:—May I take enough of your valuable space to say a word to the Democrats of Montgomery and Meneffe about the recent primary for Representatives?

I am too much gratified by the handsome majority given me by the Democrats of this county, notwithstanding my very brief canvass and the misrepresentations of my opponents, to indulge in any unkind reflections. The disadvantages under which I labored are understood by everyone, and I used every fair means to adjust all differences as equally well known. I have no regrets personally, having prosecuted the canvass in a perfectly fair and honorable way.

That the general public may not be misled by the statements in the last issue of the Sentinel-Democrat, I have sought this opportunity to say that the implied charge that I used money to buy votes, or combined with any other candidate, is absolutely false. I did not, nor did any friends, use a single dollar to buy a vote, and it is a well known fact that in the precinct in this county where there is the largest "floating" vote, and where Mr. Taylor used his money and secured the vote which nominated him, that he worked in conjunction with one of the candidates for Superintendent.

After declining a fair proposition to settle the matter between us in this country, and manifesting a decided intention to compass my defeat, when he must have known his own success was impossible, Mr. Cassity might have been generous enough to have treated me justly after his object was accomplished. His effort to account for his own defeat by making indirect charges, which are false, confirms the good sense of the Democrats in refusing to make him their standard-bearer.

My heart is full of gratitude to the good Democrats of Montgomery and the few faithful friends of Meneffe for their generous support, and I will cherish with a lasting and tender regard those warm personal friends who made my cause their own.

Very truly yours,

H. R. FRENCH.

$2 For $1.50.

We call special attention to our clubbing arrangement with the great southern weekly, the Atlanta Constitution, which enables us to offer both papers for the remarkably low sum of $1.50 a year. The first duty of every good citizen is to patronize his home paper. He wishes to become thoroughly conversant with his county matters, and only through his home paper can he expect to be supplied with the current country news, which is of the closest interest to him.

After he has provided himself with his home paper, the next consideration of those who are not within easy reach of a first-class daily newspaper should be to select a first-class weekly newspaper supplying all of the world, and paying special attention to features which are of particular interest to the household and the farm.

Just such a paper is the Weekly Constitution, published at Atlanta, Ga., and having a circulation of 156,000 copies a week, the largest of any weekly newspaper published in America.

It is essentially a farmer's paper and stands at the head of the weekly press of this country. Its agricultural department alone is worth the subscription price of the paper, while it numbers among its contributors such well known names as Bret Harte, Mark Twain, Joel Chandler Harris, Sarge Plunkett, Bill Arp, and a host of others, whose reputations are world wide.

Its women and children's departments are prepared with a special view to please the little folks and the women, and its news columns literally cover the face of the earth.

News from Washington seems to indicate that the compromise talk is daily becoming more pronounced. It is believed that the abandonment by the managers of the repeal bill of their scarcely concealed intention to force an issue this week may be the basis for a great deal of this talk, but a prominent Democratic Senator, who has been identified from the beginning with the movement to reconcile the conflict of opinion between the two elements in his party, is said to be confidently expressing the opinion that an early date, probably some time this week, a compromise will be reached, by the terms of which the silver bullion now in the Treasury will be coined during a period of about four years; that a sufficient amount of silver will be purchased from time to time to bring the total silver circulation up to $800,000,000; that bonds will be issued sufficient to bring the gold reserve up to $200,000,000 and that the bank circulation is to be extended to the par value of bonds deposited to secure their circulation.

THE WAYSIDE PUMP.

"shades hands!" says the wayside pump.
Rest or refreshment at a summer day,
And sweetest like the dew of new,
Although, no doubt, 'tis true,
He speaks through his nose in a cawless way
That "Shade hands!" How his arm of oak
Stretches out as you draw a-night!
All the world over, he says,
To pour you out, as smooth as smoke,
A drop of nectar than you could buy,
What! do we have to pay to have
Take that cup from the rusty nail,
Hail to the sunburnt spout,
Well, here goes, I'll pay. And so I did.
Pump away; you can't pump him out
Hearts are full, it's worth it to fall,
There full comes, Ah, here need tell
Whether you like him ill or well.

So he stands by the dusty way—
G'day's own landholder—and seems to say,
"Dumb as a post, all the time, now,
Trotz horses with nostrils wide,
Plings his heels in his heavy traps,
Drags his load, even when he's dead,
A bunch of grass, and then amble off.

And now the deep chested ones come,
And drain the draft at a single draught.
Their great eyes gleam, though they are dumb,
And their voices are as the wind.
The smacking ton' health the load of hay
Lovingly turns their eyes that they may see,
They too, are dumb, and axe swings,
And the outstretched noses kiss the cool,
Sweet stream from the sprout that springs
Like a man, and the old landholder,
The farmer's dog with his tolling tongue
Lays and pants till he has his fill.
Then, the great breaking wheel from the rut are swung,
And the fragrant load ways up the hill.

Dear old friendly friend,
Brought me a load of black
Full of cheer as a good man's face, Overflowing with simple grace.
G'day's own landholder had to spend,
What I did I were as true a man,
As then art pump on thy bumbley plain!
Out of the world, out of the world,
Out of my heart sweet love would flow,
Round me all nourished life would grow,
And I'd be a man, a man,
Would stop to blow me and to bleat.
—James Buckham in Youth's Companion.

THE DIVER'S TRAP.

Everybody knows Old Point Con-fort Fort Monroe, Newport Roads,
the Rip Raps and Hampton Roads, at least on the maps and in the history of the civil war.

The story I am going to tell had its scenes in that locality chiefly under the lee of Hampton Roads, and the time runs through nearly three centuries.

On a stormy, stormy night in 1729
there came sailing in past Henlopen a Spanish caravel, the El Dorado, carrying 10,000 ounces of gold in bags of 50 pounds each.

The don in command looked in vain over the black, seething waste of water for a safe harbor, and finally had to board a native of the coast.
He passed the gallery to the high prowed ship, called on all the saints and tore his hair in out of hand.

All the time the caravel drove on in the storm and struck the reef where the ripraps were constructed long afterward.

Next morning she had disappeared.

No trace was ever found. One survivor of the crew washed to shore and lay dead to all appearance. Not a soul in the world knew that a rich treasure had been on the boat.

Old Louis Peran was about the oldest man living anywhere on Maryland east shore. He had been born there and his father before him. They were not of the ancient Maryland stock, but tradition went that the first Peran known there was of Spanish blood, old Louis Peran's great-grandfather.

Louis Peran himself showed no trace of such blood, but his young grandson—likewise a Louis Peran—had an olive complexion, black curly hair, large brilliant dark eyes, and the haughty nose of the original Peran, whose portrait hung in the old parlor of the manor house. The descendants by far all had been of early English colonial families. Perans had fought in both wars—the Revolution and the civil war—and in the last four men of the family had given their lives and now, in 1872, the old grandfather and the young grandson comprised the whole race.
Not a man nor woman else was left of the Peran name.

The October evening the two sat on the old, dilapidated veranda. It had an outlook on the Atlantic, and white winged clippers were skinming the waves in the moonlight.

"Louis," said the old grandfather suddenly, laying down his pipe, "you love the sea, and I am going to tell you a sea story. Every Peran loves the sea, and for years I know of one who has lost it."

"I am going to tell you of that Peran and of his ship. My father told me the story, and you may tell your son some day. Still I don't think you will. I think it will be no longer private family history by the time you are gray headed."

"It was in 1729 that the El Dorado,
20 guns, Don Luis Juan Angel Perano commander, was selected to convoy from the Peruvian and Mexican mines an immense treasure in gold and gems home to the King of Spain.

"Don Louis gathered his treasure safely enough, but one night, flying the yellow royal standard of Spain, he drove in here before an awful storm and sank on a reef. Adverse winds had beat him out of his course for days, and it was all unknown waters."

"Just one man was saved. He had been struck on the head by falling timbers and was picked up on the shore senseless. When his health was restored his memory was a blank.
He could not tell his name nor what country he sailed from. He had been found on the beach, nearly naked, but he could tell absolutely nothing, not even the name of his ship, or that he had come from a ship. His voice sounded like a summer day,

And sweetest like the dew of new,
Although, no doubt, 'tis true,
He speaks through his nose in a cawless way
That "Shade hands!" How his arm of oak
Stretches out as you draw a-night!
All the world over, he says,
To pour you out, as smooth as smoke,
A drop of nectar than you could buy,
What! do we have to pay to have
Take that cup from the rusty nail,
Hail to the sunburnt spout,
Well, here goes, I'll pay. And so I did.
Pump away; you can't pump him out
Hearts are full, it's worth it to fall,
There full comes, Ah, here need tell
Whether you like him ill or well.

"He was a fine, handsome man with a proud air of command. He remained in the family—it was here on this estate—and married the daughter, and this manor house has come down to us, as you know, from them.

"When he was a very old man, he was one day at a barn burning, and by another strange turn of circumstances a falling beam struck him on the head. There was Peran, with a big cheese knife in his hand, just making a slash at the sea wolf that cut him open. They hauled me up, and that ended the day's work for Tom Newell.

Peran did not seem to mind it at all, but a young chap, devoid of fear that followed took the cake. The cow stood in awe of him, though he was. He had a way of looking down at him with his big eyes like the black African lions. Yet he was as gentle as a girl. Well, and he raked the bed, but got only old iron.

You'd think Peran would have given in with disgust. But he got more and more hopeful, though it was hard to believe it, and he was paying big wages.

He soon communicated his conclusions to me, so I was to some extent working in the dark. I tell you I was almost devoted with curiosity. We even had to guess that it was a search for treasure. The old est sailor in Norfolk and the people along the coast were of any sorts that he had.

"His oldest son he gave his name to and his name. He told them that he had sworn to take on board the El Dorado the king's treasure and guard it and deliver it at Barcelona.

The memory of the oath on the crucifix seemed to haunt him with terror telling distinctness. He laid commands on his son to guard the secret of the location of the lost treasure, and to commit it to his son, and so it was to do until such time as the treasure could be recovered and restored to the sovereign of Spain.

"A very interesting story, grandfather," said the young Louis; speaking now for the first time. "So we are of noble blood." He was a grandee of Spain! Blue blood! Well, now grandpa, you're young. I don't know what such distinctions.

"Silent Louis" said the old man steernly. "To deify the value of blood is ignorance indeed." And then he went on: "None of us has been able to attempt the recovery of this treasure. Nor have we seen the signs that it was possible in the future.
But lately I have read of divers who go down to the bottom of the ocean and perform such deeds that I feel an old man's presentation relating to you, Louis—that you are the one of the race to redeem the earth to Spain. Swear it to me, Louis."

"Indeed, grandfather, I cannot do any such thing," interrupted the boy.
"If you say it is a point of family honor to try to restore this fabulous treasure, I'll promise to do my best, but I'll not swear it."

"All at once we went on a new task.
There was a low reef at the outer side of the sandspit away from the riggery. Before the raps were constructed the current had torn away the sandbanks as clean as a fine tooth comb and raked everything into our ditch where it lay silt at the bottom.
And I'm blessed if that there galvanometer hadn't rung a bell every time the dredge struck a bar of gold, so that Peran sitting in his cabin in the old schoolhouse had known he had the treasure said enough. There it lay at the bottom of our trap to be fished up at leisure and stored away in the hold of the gunboat in big steel boxes."

They tell me the Spanish government gave him half the find, that he is now a grandee, whatever that is, that his right name is Perano, and that he got back all the lands and castles of some ancestor who lost lot of treasure long ago in Hampton Beds.

As I told you, Peran was a generous young chap, and when he was going away to Spain he gave me a check for $5,000 over, and above my wages—Lieutenant J. C. Walsh, U.
S. A., in Chicago Inter Ocean.

A nice, dark skinned man came to visit us once or twice. That was the Spanish minister. He joked a good deal with Louis in his own language and laughed.

I really think the old gentleman was of my opinion and believed we were giving no trouble.

Recent Medical Absurdities.

The latest medical absurdity is the use of "organic extracts," prepared from various vital organs, and intended for the relief of diseases affecting similar organs of human beings. Thus for brain and nervous troubles, there has been a preparation of brain juice under the head of "Cerebrine"; for cardiac affections a liquid extracted from the heart of some one who has no further use for it, is brought forward as a reliable cure under the name of "Cardine," and the list is capable of indefinite extension. These are not ordinary quack medicines like those advertised so widely in the daily newspapers, but are introduced and recommended by regular physicians of well-known reputation. It seems strange that any educated person could accept any such preposterous theory, which is a direct reversal to the medical science of the middle ages, and in opposition to all the results of modern investigations; but mankind, both professional and unprofessional, is characterized by credulity, and we expect to see the "organic extracts" flourish for a few weeks or months, and then quietly disappear, to join Brown-Sequard's "Elixir of Life," "Koch's Tuberculin," "Bergeson's injection of sulphurated hydrogen," and various other renowned cures which are now as dead as the patients to whom they were administered.—Popular Science Monthly.

The World's Fair and American Railways.

The Queen & Crescent Route widely known as the road running the "Fast Trains in the South," is in the field to carry everybody from the South to the World's Fair at Chicago. No part of the Southern country is left uncared for by this great railway and its connections. The Through Car System is an admirable exposition of the wonderful capabilities of American railroading. From New Orleans Through Sleeping Cars run daily, morning and evening, carrying its passengers via Cincinnati or Louisville, as they may select.

From Shreveport, Vicksburg and Jackson another Through Sleeping Car Line comes to join and become a part of the magnificent Vestibuled Through Trains, which passing through Birmingham and the famous Wills Valley of Alabama, is joined at Chattanooga by the train from Jacksonville, Fla., Brunswick, and Atlanta, Ga., over the E. T. V. & Ga. railroad, and proceeds north over the beautiful Cincinnati Southern, through the grandest natural scenery and most attractive historical country in the world, to Oakdale, where another magnificent Pullman car is received, coming from the Richmond & Danville System from Charleston, S. C., through Columbia, S. C., the beautiful French Broad country, and Asheville, N. C., and Knoxville, Tenn.

This route to Chicago is made so as to afford the most convenient hours for departures from the principal cities and arrivals in Chicago.

Passengers can purchase tickets good over one line north of the river, and returning via another if they desire a variable route without extra expense. Or they can go via Cincinnati, returning via Louisville, or vice versa.

Round trip tickets on sale at reduced rates. Agents of the Chicago line will on request assist in looking up rooming accommodations for visitors to the Fair.

Everything that an almost perfect system can devise to deserve the praise and patronage of the traveling public has been provided. Bringing the Company to Terms.

A German saloon keeper wanted electric lights, and applied to an electric light company not a hundred miles from New York. This company was operating its station on the "fixed charge" system; that is, so much per month, whether the lights burned one day or thirty days. Some one had told the German about electric meters, and that was what he wanted. "I bay for you I get, and 'no more,'" said he. "You put me in a medlar stretcher, aber I don't get me no lights." Now, it happened the company had no meter, but as it was either lose a customer or put in a meter, they proceeded to make one. The works of a heavy set day clock were secured and placed in a wooden box, which was fastened to the wall in the back part of the saloon, with instructions that it mustn't be touched. The wires of the main circuit were run in one side of the box and out the other. The clock was wound up, and as my tucking was a constant source of pleasure to the German. Every week a man would come and wind the clock with great ostentation, before he would show it to any one who happened to notice it. "See dot?" he would say, "dot's a 'lectric medlar. Don't touch id! Dem 'lectric bidders bin purty smart, but dey don't git away wid me, by chimin'!"—Electrical Review.

Salt Sweetens Sugar

A member of the Physiological Society of Berlin definitely explains the making of sugar sweetener by the addition of salt. From his experiments he finds that if a solution of sugar there will be added a slight amount of salt and water, so weak that it excites no saline taste, the result is extra sweetening of the sugared water. The weakest of quinine solution is said also to produce similar results. The explanation given of the above seeming incongruity is that the ever so feeble salty bitterness imparts an increasing sensibility to the sensation of taste by the simultaneous stimuli, and hence an appreciation of additional sweetness.

THE ADVOCATE.

SOME EARNEST WORDS AS TO LYNCING.

Everybody can see that lynching grows worse and worse. Such practices are contagious. Public description of one case suggests another, where it might not have been thought of. What in the world will this lead to? As a permanent and growing practice, lynching must be destructive of civilization. Is this statement broad? Think a moment and see if it would not be so.

Now the apology for lynching must lie in one of two things: Some say that our laws and our courts can not be relied on to punish as outrageous criminals ought to be punished. Others tell us that lynching will be more likely to strike terror into brutal criminals, than the slow and dull processes of law.

To the last point, I gravely doubt whether the view is correct. Even the lowest of mankind are not brutes. They have some notions of right and wrong; something of what we call conscience. If you try to restrain such a man from great crimes only by fear of lynching, you excite the brutal elements in him, and do not appeal to the human elements. He thinks to himself, that if he gets caught he will be lynched, and so simply rages at the thought, and really considers himself as in such a case the innocent party. Besides, he hopes to escape. He feels cunning. He thinks maybe some other fellow will be caught and lynched. Everybody knows that this does sometimes happen, though the parties engaged in lynching naturally cover it up after the mistake is ascertained. The tempted criminal grins to think how some other fellow may be swung up while he goes free. Altogether it is a form of punishment that does not strike terror, certainly not so much as many seem to imagine. On the other hand, if law is properly administered, there is something about it that appeals to the human in a tempered wretch. I was glad to see the Courier-Journal the other day expressing a similar persuasion. The idea of having all the facts searched out and proved against him, having his guilt fully established, and then having to wait for weeks, with a knowledge that at last he will be hung, there is really something more terrible about this than attaches to the prospect of lynching.

But the great trouble is, people say, that the laws are sometimes inadequate, the punishment provided is not severe enough, and, especially, the lawyers can manage to have guilty men escape if there is any money in the case. Now there is some ground for this view. There has been a tendency, in recent generations, to tone down the punishment for the lightest offenses, and to sympathize with, or pity, a vile criminal as rather unfortunate than guilty. There is a sort of sentimentality abroad in regard to criminals, by no means universal, but pretty widely diffused. And it can not be denied that some lawyers manage to delay a case until public indignation has subsided, and then, perhaps, the guilty man may go free, or may encounter only a modified punishment. Lawyers are like the prophet's figs—the good are very good and the bad are very bad. Some of the noblest men in the world are judges and lawyers; but those who yield in early life to temptations of their calling, do sometimes become very bad men, and our processes of trial, designed to save men from hasty condemnation and excessive penalties, are not unfrequently manipulated in the interest of the guilty. What then?

Suppose that some horrid crime has been committed; some outrageous arson, or murder, or rape. When hasty spirits propose lynching, the plea is always made that the courts cannot be relied on. Now suppose that instead of lynching, a public meeting should be held. In which many thoughtful and judicious citizens take part. Let the prima facie facts be stated in the meeting; let a large committee be appointed, representing different classes of the community, according to the circumstances of the case; and a smaller Executive committee; let the meeting urge, and the committee see to it, that the case shall be pushed along without any undue delay; let the lower grade of lawyers perceive that public opinion will not tolerate any tricks of delay; let a second meeting be held, if necessary, or at any rate let the committee make itself felt, insisting upon promptness and pain-taking justice; thus the high-wounding feelings of the community would find expression in a way tending to speedy results, while yet the requires to "civilized justice" would be respected and observed.

I have mentioned that the law sometimes fails to impose adequate penalties. The most offensive of all crimes, the one that oftentimes occasions lynching, is quite differently punished in different States. By the help of my friend, Judge W. O. Harris, I offer these facts as to the penalty of rape in the Southern States—not stopping to point out the distinction made in some States, according to the age of the victim: In Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina it is punished by death; in Alabama, and Kentucky by death, or confinement in the penitentiary for life; in the discretion of the jury; in Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia by death, or confinement in the penitentiary for a term of years, in the discretion of the jury; in Mississippi by confinement in the penitentiary for life; in South Carolina by confinement in the penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years. Now if any think that in their State the penalty is inadequate—as I must confess I think in regard to several of the cases mentioned—let them earnestly work with the next Legislature. That may do a great deal, and can not do any great harm.

Besides the general evil of lynching upon which I will not enlarge, there are some special evils appertaining to the practice in our Southern States. I write as a Southern man, having spent my life successively in Virginia, South Carolina and Kentucky. We Southern white people are trying to deal with the most formidable problem that civilized mankind ever had to face. Besides a great many ignorant people, we have this mighty mass of colored people. We must not forget that the negroes differ widely among themselves, having come from different races in Africa, and having had very different relations to the white people while held in slavery. Many of them are greater superior to others in character, but the great mass of them belong to a very low grade of humanity. We have to deal with a large number of other white people stand off at a distance and scold us. Not a few of our fellow citizens at the North feel and act very nobly about the matter; but the number is sadly great who do nothing and seem to care nothing but to find fault. Now, from the very nature of the case, most of the crimes which among us have been punished in this epidemic of lynching have been crimes committed by negroes. When a negro murders a white man, or outrages a white woman or child, it excites in us a wrath all the greater because of race feeling. Every white person in the United States would feel the same way if placed in the same circumstances, except some few who they might feel not to be so bad, and then persuade themselves that they do not. If a negro outrages a white girl, maybe a child, it stirs in us white men a wrath almost intolerable. But here we are with these great and frightful difficulties confronting us and imperilling civilization. Now, if we go on lynching, and when Northern newspapers complain, we merely rake up cases of Northern lynchings, too, and defend ourselves by saying: "you are another," we tend to repress the sympathy of the better class of our Northern fellow-citizens. If we can stop the lynching and administer prompt, stern but real and civilized justice, then the people at the North will more and more sympathize with our grave difficulties, and in many ways will help us as we strive to overcome them.

Besides, there is the public opinion of the colored people themselves. Some of the educated negroes are demagogues, and it would be wonderful if they were not; it would be a new reason for questioning the unity of the human race, if they were so different from the white folks. But there is a goodly number of intelligent negroes who really take sound and wholesome views of the situation. If we continue to tolerate lynching, with black men the victims in nine cases out of ten, we lead these better negroes to think that we are enemies of all their race. If we do not provoke race conflicts, we alienate the better class from the support of justice and government and civilization.

Now, then, I appeal to thoughtful men wherever the Courier-Journal is read, will you not come out and condemn this business of lynching? Will you not openly discourage and oppose it, insisting upon promptness and our duty. Is it not high time? I respectfully ask editors of other papers to publish some part of this article, or to write something about the matter. I ask intelligent people all over the South to reflect upon the subject, to tone up public opinion by their conversation. Men and women the thing is wrong and getting worse, and tending to be ruinous. I pray you think, speak out, act in such ways as you deem wisest.

I will not apologize for publishing this respectful appeal. As a minister of religion, I take no part in the manipulation of party politics, though careful to vote at every election, since voting is surely one of the highest duties of an American citizen. But this is in no sense a question of party politics. It is a question of justice, of fundamental right, of essential civilization, of human welfare.—John A. Broadus, in the Courier-Journal.

Robert M. Hunter has shipped 1,500 bushels of Jessamine clover seed bought for Cincinnati parties, engaged at $5 per bushel. Since the decline in seed has purchased about 500 bushels more at $4.50. This same seed will find its way back to the county next spring at about $7.50 per bushel—Jessamine Journal.

At Wichita, Kan. in the district Court Judge Reed declared the eight-hour law unconstitutional. Judge Reed is the first District Judge to pass on the act. He holds it contrary to both the State and the federal Constitutions, and declares it a restraint on the liberties of action. Claims aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars for overtime under this act are pending against every county and city in the State.

AFTER A WHILE.

The sorrow that pains us will melt in a smile, And the horse that we bet on will win every mile—

After awhile:

After awhile

The fire will blase and the battle will "blaze"

And cash will come in like a millionaire's pile—

After awhile:

After awhile

(Let no one the song I am singing revile)

We'll hup up and gallop gayly in style—

After awhile:

The taste of the switch that was brought from the wildwood.
